ARRESTED FOR UNLAWFUL SALE

George Smalley Says the Transaction
Was Legal and he Had Right to Sell.

THE TROUBLE OVER $135 HORSE

John Brumfiel of Connersville Will be Prosecuting Witness When Case
Comes to Trial.

George Smalley, owner of the feed stable on the east side of the court house was arrested today by Sheriff Clata Bebout on a warrant charging him with selling unlawfully, mortgaged property. He was released on a two hundred dollar bond.

John Brumfiel of Connersville is the prosecuting witness and he alleges that Smalley sold him a horse that was mortgaged to Owen L. Carr to secure payment of $1,884.50. Brumfiel says that he paid Smalley $135 for the horse and that he was told nothing of the mortgage. On these grounds he wants Smalley prosecuted.

It will be remembered that Brumfiel lost in a case of a similar nature against Owen L. Carr in the Henry county circuit court. It is said that since he did not get judgment from Mr. Carr he desires to implicate Mr. Smalley and for that reason caused his arrest. Brumfiel says the transaction took place June 9, 1909, and that Smalley unlawfully and knowingly sold him the dark gray mare.

Smalley when seen today said that he sold Brumfiel the horse but not unlawfully as he would have him doing. Smalley says that he had an understanding with Owen L. Carr that he could sell the horse regardless of the mortgage and taking Carr at his word found a buyer and proceeded to sell. He says that with this understanding it was not necessary to tell Brumfiel about the mortgage as it was all right with Carr. For this reason the accused man claims the transaction was not illegal. Mr. Smalley is well known in this city and county and has been in the livery business here for a number of years. He says he has a number of witnesses to the alleged unlawful transaction and expects to show the State up when the case comes to trial, which will be during the September term.

Memorial Day will be observed tomorrow with appropriate services in several churches in the county and the annual sermon to the veterans in this city is expected to attract a large crowd.

The sermon in this city will be preached tomorrow morning at the First Presbyterian church by the Rev. J. B. Meacham. Members of the G. A. R. will meet at the court house at nine-thirty o'clock and they will march to the church in a body. Special music has been arranged and the service will be very impressive. While the day is for the war veterans the public is invited to attend.

At the New Salem M. E. church tomorrow afternoon, the Rev. Clyde S. Black will deliver a memorial discourse on "In Memory of Heroes." The New Salem services will attract a number of people from here. Special music, in keeping with the day, will be rendered and Hood's orchestra of Glenwood will give several selections. The Rev. Mr. Black is considered an able speaker and his address will no doubt be timely.

The Glenwood Methodist Episcopal church will observe the day at the morning service. The Rev. Clyde S. Black will preach at the regular hour. The Rev. Emory Kunz of Colfax, Ind., pastor of the Fairview Christian church will preach there at two o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Kunz will deliver a sermon in keeping with the day.

The G. A. R. of this city are expecting a large crowd to hear Judge Edward Jackson of New Castle, who will deliver the annual Decoration Day address next Tuesday afternoon in the assembly room of the court house. In the morning of Decoration Day the 1d soldiers will decorate the graves of their dead comrades. They will march to the cemetery, starting from the court house.

HE MAY COME HERE TO STAY

That former resident who was here last week for a brief space of time, long enough at least to talk about Rushville and learn a few of the things that have been accomplished here in the last few years, "came back" yesterday and decided to continue his investigation of Rushville, the home of his childhood and where he had all of the dreams of the future. He said he didn't give a "rap" if his name did appear in the interview because there was no one in Rushville who cared about him, but he said that he hoped to make a favorable impression in the near future. "What is your name?" It seems that your face looks familiar and it may be possible that you will be re-

LARGEST CLASS IS GRADUATED

Forty Seniors Are Given Their Diplomas at Annual Commencement Exercises Here.

REV. F. J. MCCONNELL SPEAKS

Says Educated Mind Can Best "Get Things Into Shape" in This Life.

"Getting Things Into Shape" was the subject of the address which the Rev. Francis J. McConnell, president of DePauw University, delivered at the annual commencement exercises of the high school at the Main Street Christian church. A large crowd that nearly filled the large auditorium of the Main Street Christian church was present to pay its respects for the class of 1911 which is by far the largest class which was ever graduated from the Rushville high school. The music was furnished by the Connersville Auditorium orchestra. The diplomas were presented to the graduates by J. W. Arbuckle, secretary of the school board.

"Most any person knows what to say if he gets up to make a speech," said the Rev. Mr. McConnell, "but it is the way that he says it. The public speaker so often gets the cart before the horse and delivers his address backward. It's the man of today who succeeds that does not waste any time with inconsequential things. He must have a mind to pick out the immaterial and give that which is pertinent, that which drives the point straight home as the flight of an arrow."

As the rough piece of wood is to the arrow, so is the untrained mind to the trained mind, he said. The Rev. Mr. McConnell declared that the arrow and the rough piece might be of the same material, but that one was much prepared to go straight to the point. So it is with the educated mind, he said. It is capable of determining that which is useless and that which is not, while the mind which has not been trained worries and fumes over small things until there is no time for the larger things.

The Rev. Mr. McConnell explained how the schools get the human material in shape for the work of life.

Sometimes, he said, people thought eight years spent in the grades and four years in the high school were years wasted, but he declared that the twelve years preparation enabled the scholars to make up the "lost time" quicker than those who had not had the benefit of schooling and as a result of the training received in school those who had the educational qualifications would soon outrun those who had been neglected.

Dr. McConnell said the man or woman who is gotten into shape in the schools is not one who does things simply because others do them. Instead they do things because they have been trained to do them, he said.

The speaker told a number of humorous points during the course of his address to illustrate certain points which he wished to make. He referred to certain passages in the old McDuffy's reader several times during the evening and each time he asked that persons who remembered the piece hold up their hands. There were many of "those present."

In closing the Rev. Mr. McConnell declared that the method of thinking in the present age is fast changing. He said that the imaginative persons, who often become flighty when they are not guided by their judgment, were gradually losing ground and giving away to the sane thinkers. There is so much of the "flighty" in this age, he said, that it is necessary to draw a distinguished line. He said that a certain amount of imagination was necessary to produce the great things, the results of inventive genius, but it must be guided by sane judgment.

The Rev. McConnell declared that more and more the people of this generation were placing stress on the manner in which a thing is done and not on the thing done. He said that in political, social, religious and other walks of life, people are wanting to know the method and not that which is accomplished. He said that it is fast becoming the custom for people to condemn and socially ostracize the wealthy man who gains his money illegally and to have the opinion that the rich man earned his wealth by dint of his own toil should have it and be allowed to spend it as he desired.

COURT SAYS I. & C. MUST PAY FOR ALL

Appellate Judges Decide Company
Should Pay For Running Telephone Wires Under C. H. & D.

DISCUSSION AT ARLINGTON

According to a ruling of the appellate court in Indianapolis yesterday, the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction company will be compelled to pay for running the wires of the Arlington Telephone Company not only under the interurban road, but also under the C. H. & D. which is only a few feet south of the traction lines at the point where the change was made. When the line was built it was deemed best to run the telephone wires under the track. In view of the fact that the railroad track was so near, it was next to impossible to raise the wires again and it was thought best to continue the wires underground. The C. H. & D. refused to pay for a part of the work and the matter was taken to court. The cost was not so great only the I. & C. felt that the principle of the thing was the greatest thing involved.

The decision says in part: Where an interurban railroad crosses a telephone company's line and it is mutually agreed that the best method of crossing is by putting the wires underground the interurban company is liable for the whole cost though it involves their being put underground across an adjoining steam road before being put on poles again.

FORMER EDITOR HAD ACTIVE LIFE

Granville E. Cowing, Once Publisher of Rushville Whig, Later Republican, Well Informed Man

RECALLS HEROS IN WAR TIME

Began Life as Printer and Was Later an Editor in Washington, D. C.
—Related Here.

Granville E. Cowing of Muncie, former Rushville man and extensively related here, is declared to be one of the best informed men in the State on live topics as well as having an infinite source of information concerning the great men of earlier years. Mr. Cowing is an uncle of Joe Cowing and Former Mayor Harvey Cowing. He was at one time owner and editor of the Rushville Republican, when it was known as the Rushville Whig.

The following dispatch from Muncie to the Indianapolis News tells much of his life's history.

The talks of General Sam Houston and of John G. Whittier, whose verses did much to strip the shackles of slavery from a million human beings, as though they were of yesterday instead of the dim past. Cowing was in Washington, D. C., and took a humble part in the stirring days of the republic before the civil war and he relates many stories of men famous in American history.

Cowing is the father of Dr. Hugh A. Cowing, the Delaware county health officer, and of Lewis Cowing, one of this county's representatives in the Indiana legislature.

In early life he was a printer and later an editor in Washington and was in the employ of John G. Whittier when Whittier published the National Era. Cowing became editor of small publications in various parts of the country and now is a regular contributor to newspapers in topics of public interest.

As a compositor in a printing office, Cowing assisted to "set up" in type the first edition of Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," from the original manuscript.

"One Fourth of July, while I was working as a printer in Washington," says Cowing, "I went to the capitol building to hear Daniel Webster make a patriotic address, but it was very hot that day and the crowds were large, so after I had heard Webster utter a few words I left. I knew that I would have to set up the speech in the newspaper office anyway, and would get to read it that way."

Mr. Cowing takes just as much interest in present day politics and affairs of state as he did in the days of Webster and Calhoun. Nobody was more concerned over the sending of troops to the Mexican border by the United States than he. He is of old-fashioned type of patriot that has absolute faith in the wisdom of the rulers, and he does not question the patriotism or good judgment of President Taft, any more than he doubted the integrity of Henry Clay, to whom he was politically opposed.

"Henry Clay was the absolute idol of the people," said Mr. Cowing. "When it was announced in the Washington newspaper that Henry Clay would arrive in the city at a certain time, to attend the opening of congress or to deliver an address, thousands would turn out to greet him and acclaim him as their champion. On the other hand, Daniel Webster's coming and going attracted little attention. Webster's great ability was recognized and his matchless oratory was applauded, but he failed to get close to the people, to warm them with the fire of eloquence, great as that was. Webster was con-

TEACHERS MUST NOW TAKE EXAMINATION

According to the opinion being prepared in the office of the attorney-general, kindergarten teachers who are holding diplomas from kindergarten schools, which state superintendents of public instruction in the past have certified as life state licenses for kindergarten teaching, will be compelled to take examinations and obtain licenses regularly. According to a rule adopted some time ago by the State superintendent these diplomas were accepted in lieu of examinations.

The general assembly in the recent session revised the statutes governing the licensing of teachers, and Charles A. Greathouse, State superintendent, interpreted the act to mean that it includes kindergarten teachers. Attorney-General Honan said he believed the legislature intended that kindergarten teachers should be required, as others, to take examinations and that he did not believe the State superintendent has now, or had at any time, power to exempt them.

Mr. Greathouse has also asked the attorney-general for an interpretation of the school book act concerning the commission to persons handling the books when old books to be supplanted by the books to be selected next week are offered in exchange.

ANCHORS WITH HISTORY.

After Lying Two Hundred Years at Cruces They Will Go to West Point.

Two large wrought iron anchors which have been lying at Cruces, on the canal zone, for 200 years will be sent to the United States Military academy at West Point, where they will probably be mounted above the entrance to the academy library.

There is a legend which says that the anchors were brought up the Chagres river in boats and unloaded at Cruces for transport overland to Panama. Forty men were carrying an anchor when one of them stumbled and fell. The others were unable to stand the weight, and the anchor fell, crushing seven of them. The point at which the anchor now rests is called Mata-siete, which is Spanish for "Kill Seven."

The idea of removing the anchors to West Point originated with Lieutenant Walter D. Smith, class of 1901 at the Military academy, and the work of taking them to the railroad was assigned to him.

HE "FARMS" FRECKLES.

Doctor Cuts Them From One Part of Body and Grafts Them on Another.

Dr. Harold Gifford of Omaha, Neb., an oculist, regularly cuts patches of skin from one part of his body, engrafts them on another and does it for fun. Freckles are his pets. Rings, lines and clustered patches of the little brown spots decorate the physician's right arm one day, and later they are marshaled on his other arm. He is a freckle farmer.

Dr. Gifford disclosed his unique pastime to an audience at the Nebraska Medical association convention. He told how he had experimented with freckles since 1901, transferring them back and forth about his body, adding new ones occasionally and removing unfit ones. He said an assortment of them taken from the arm of his young son and mixed with his own had lived but a short time.

With only his razor Dr. Gifford said he can have the loveliest kind of a time alone in his office.

DATES BACK TO 1784.

Virginia Newspaper Is Older Than the Government.

The Alexandria (Va.) Gazette, founded in 1784 and therefore one of the oldest newspapers in the United States, has just passed from the control of the Snowden family, some member of which has been the editor and proprietor for 127 years.

Few newspapers in the United States have had such a long career as the Gazette. Its publication was only stopped during the progress of the civil war, and then but temporarily. The Gazette office was taken charge of by Federal troops in 1861. They seized the paper and for awhile published a paper of their own. In 1862 the office was burned by the Federal troops. The Gazette, therefore, was only published at intervals during the progress of the war. These, however, were the only occasions when its publication was stopped.

Farm Weeds and Other Pests

By G. M. FEISE

PURDUE UNIVERSITY AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION DEPT.

The Weed Problem Solved—A Clean Field—Intelligence, Watchfulness, Industry and Co-operation Will Keep Fields as Free of Weeds as This One Is.

The farmer has always had crop-reducing pests of one kind or another to contend with on the farm, but he has never had a better opportunity than he has now of equipping himself to successfully contend with and control the weed, insect and fungus enemies that work against his success and prosperity. When one thinks of high-priced land, low average yields of crops, and of the various disadvantages connected with disposing of farm products, it is easy to see that it never was more necessary than it is now, to get the upper hand of these pests, subdue them, eradicate them if possible, or if permanent eradication is impossible, then thoroughly control them so as to reduce their ravages to a minimum. A fundamental business principle is to prevent waste, stop leakages and to beware of misappropriation and embezzlement of resources. Farm pests occasion serious leakage, waste and shrinkage in output.

Among the very worst of farm pests are weeds. It is said that not one farmer in 50 can give the commonly accepted name, to say nothing of the habits, of 20 of our common weeds. Whether this be so or not, weeds are increasing at an alarming rate in this state. Indiana farmers are losing hundreds of thousands of dollars every year because of failure to give due attention to the weed problem as it confronts us today. There are at least six indictments against weeds charging them with being robbers in a very distinct and definite sense. All these have been proven true:

1. They rob crops of plant food.
2. They rob crops of moisture.
3. They choke out desired crops.
4. They make every farm operation more expensive.
5. Farm machinery wears out quicker on a weedy farm.
6. A weedy carelessly looked after property is unsightly and repulsive.
7. Weeds reduce crop yields as much as 50 or 60 per cent. in many cases.

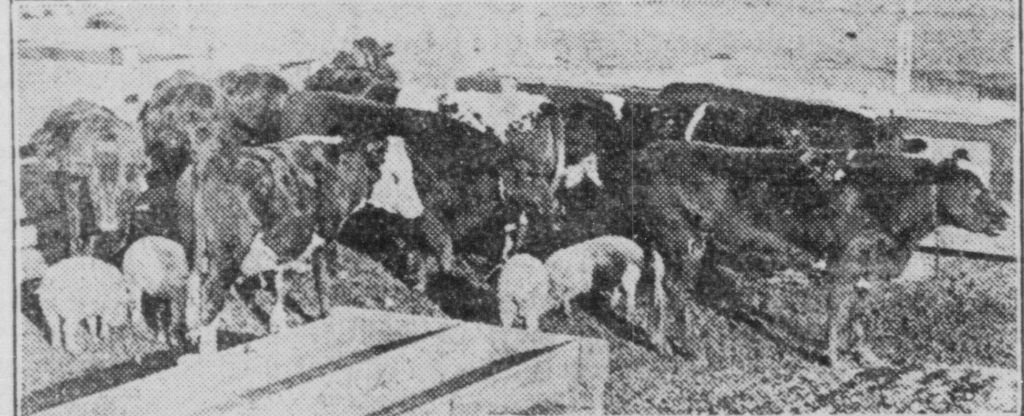

It has been demonstrated time and again that much of the loss occasioned by weeds is avoidable. Irregular, ill-timed, spasmodic attacks on weeds will not control them, but vigilance combined with a determination to keep them in subjection, and the persistent application of methods based on a knowledge of the habits of the weeds themselves, will control them. The necessary information concerning weeds—when they flower, when they seed, to what extent they seed, how they propagate, how they spread, their duration, their comparative noxiousness—is within the every one's reach. Watch these columns for suggestions on the control of weeds and other farm pests.

Pork Made in Cattle Feeding Lots

By PROF. D. O. THOMPSON

Animal Husbandry Department Purdue Experiment Station

PURDUE UNIVERSITY AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION

Hogs Following Steers in Purdue Experimental Feed Lots.

A great deal of pork is annually produced in the cattle-feeding lots of the state of Indiana. Many cattle feeders look largely to the pork made by the hogs following their cattle for the profit on the cattle-feeding business.

Believing that the cattle feeders of the state would like some definite information as to how much the hogs following the steers increase the profit per steer, the animal husbandry department of Purdue university experiment station has made a close study of this phase of the cattle feeding business in connection with the extensive studies of comparisons of rations for fattening steers which they have made during the past six years.

The table given below, taken from the results obtained in the Purdue steer feeding experiments of the winter 1909-1910, shows that the steers were divided into seven lots, each lot being fed a different ration. The ten steers in each of the lots 1, 2 and 3 were followed by five hogs, and were fed no corn or other grain in addition to that which passed through the steers. The ten steers in each of the next three lots were followed by ten hogs, and the 15 steers in lot seven were followed by 12 hogs. The hogs in each of the last four lots were fed in addition to the corn passed through the steers, 2,665 pounds of shelled corn, the value of which was deducted from the amount of money received for the pork produced in each of these lots.

The profit made per steer without the pork, with the pork, and the difference in profit which should be accredited to the pork, are shown in the last three columns of the table, respectively.

The results indicate something of the value of hogs in the cattle-feeding lots, and something of the great waste of feed there would be were no hogs put to follow the steers.

Feeding Pigs.

Care should be taken not to overfeed little pigs. Weeks before weaning they will have begun to nibble at things. A little shelled corn on a clean floor is relished by them. By the time they are three weeks old the little fellows should receive as much milk as they care for. To this shorts may be added. After weaning they may receive a very definite ration.

Indian Agricultural Colleges.

British India now has two agricultural colleges and the government will establish several more to prepare the natives for scientific work along that line.

LOOKING INTO MANY MATTERS

All Kinds of Investigations On At Washington.

VARIOUS COMMITTEES AT WORK

The Steel Trust, the Department of Justice, the Postoffice Department, the Case of the Alleged Dynamiters and Other Matters Are Today Being Made the Subjects of Inquiry on the Part of Congress.

Washington, May 27.—The Democratic committees of the house engaged in various investigations are making a grand demonstration today. The star proceeding is in progress before the Stanley committee which is inquiring into the affairs of the United States Steel corporation. John W. Gates will appear before the committee to tell what he knows about the merger of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company with the United States Steel corporation.

Another headline attraction is being staged before the committee on expenditures in the department of justice. Attorney General Wickersham appeared for interrogation by the Democratic committee relative to the work of the department of justice in administering the anti-trust laws.

Victor Berger, the Socialist, appeared before the committee on rules to make an argument for a report on his resolution, which provides for the creation of a special committee to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the arrests of the labor leaders who were charged with complicity in the Los Angeles dynamiting affair.

A representative of the National Manufacturers' association spoke against the Lloyd bill before the house committee on reform in the civil service. The Lloyd bill provides that government employees shall be permitted to organize unions and be accorded the right of "freer speech and action."

Officials of the state, treasury and postoffice departments have been summoned to testify by the three house committees that are inquiring into the operations of the departments named.

"DREAMLAND" ABLAZE

Fire Which Swept Coney Island Resort Claimed Six Babies.

New York, May 27.—A fire necessitating four alarms started at Coney Island shortly after 2 o'clock this morning and threatened to sweep completely over Dreamland. The blaze, which proved a tough one to fight, started in "Hell Gate," a scenic ride, and spread from there toward the base of the big tower that looms up all over Dreamland. Next to "Hell Gate" was the infant incubator, in which were six children, who were suffocated to death by the volumes of smoke.

Among the attractions destroyed were the magnificent electrical building and a show called the "Trip to the North Pole." The loss is estimated at $200,000.

Prison Sentence For Former Preacher.

St. Louis, May 27.—Aaron B. Donaldson, former clergyman and later a mine promoter, was found guilty on a charge of obtaining $8,000 in Missouri under false pretenses and sentenced to three years in prison. Donaldson was charged with selling stock in the Mississippi Valley Iron and Furnace company, to James H. Downs, a farmer of Assumption, Ill., it being alleged the land owned by the iron company was encumbered at the time the transaction took place.

Serious Damage by Storm.

Durham, N. C., May 27.—A cyclonic storm striking Durham last evening wrecked the Venable tobacco factory, blew down every trolley wire, set on fire and destroyed the Chatham Hosiery company's knitting mills, burned out half the telephone system and wrecked every streetcar. The damage will exceed $200,000. No lives were lost.

Vedrine Wins Big Race.

Madrid, May 27.—Pierre Vedrine, the French aviator, finished first in the Paris-to-Madrid race, winning the $20,000 offered by a Paris newspaper and $10,000 additional offered by the Spanish Aero clubs. The actual flying time for the entire trip from Paris to Madrid was twelve hours, eighteen minutes.

One Term Enough For Baehr.

Cleveland, May 27.—Herman G. Baehr, mayor of Cleveland, has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election. Baehr gave ill health as the cause of his determination. He has been under fierce political fire for some time on various public questions.

The Growth of London Town.

London, May 27.—Provisional figures returned by the census offices give the population of England and Wales this year as 36,075,269, compared with 32,527,843 in 1901. Greater London's population has increased to 7,252,963 from 6,581,402 in 1901.

LETTER FROM NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo, N. D., May 22, 1911.
Editor Republican:

As I am stopping here for a few days and will give you an idea of this country. Fargo is located on the Red River on the Northern Railroad. The river is the divide between North Dakota and Minnesota. Fargo has a population of about 16,000. Moorhead, Minn., just east of the river, has a population of 5000. This is on the plains, the timber line being about 30 miles east of here, but there is some timber along Red River.

This is a great farming country. As you go west from Fargo it is almost a solid grain field. They grow everything here that they do in Indiana although corn is not sure to mature.

They have two of the greatest natural parks here that I have ever seen. One lays right against the town on the south and has 80 acres, and the other north of town has over 100 acres. These parks are covered with virgin timber in bends of the river where the timber is protected from Prairie fires by the river. Their brick streets and the drives through the parks put Rushville in the shade for auto driving, as the drives through the parks are nicely shaded and the timber affords protection from the prairie winds and the park is nicely lighted.

Business is quiet here on account of the drouth last year, but it is looking up this spring as there are good rains and quiet cool weather at present. Although with the quiet times I am selling a few money boxes and getting them introduced. I will leave for St. Paul this evening and after a stop of one or two days there will make a run for Rushville. Land is selling at from $25 to $50 per acre here

Truly Yours,
M. J. ODGEN.

In the bicorne style hats, which are many, the Napoleon lines. Some of the bicornes are so shaped that the brim, front and back almost meet over the top of the indented crown, but at the face line is pinched into a sharp, short point at each side.

Many tub suitings, some very familiar, others new or in new guise, are seen in wash fabric stocks. Pongee and Shantung effects, head the list.

Foley's Kidney Remedy Acted Quickly

M. N. George, Irondale, Ala., was bothered with kidney trouble for many years. "I was persuaded to try Foley Kidney Remedy, and before taking it three days I could feel its beneficial effects. The pain left my back, my kidney action cleared up, and I am so much better I do not hesitate to recommend Foley Kidney Remedy." F. B. Johnson & Co.

DIAZ SETS SAIL FOR SANTANDER

Will Spend the Best of His Days In Spain.

TAKES HIS FAMILY WITH HIM

A Special Train Was Provided For the Deposed President, Who Left For Vera Cruz, Whence He Will Sail For Havana, From Which Port He Will Take Passage to His New Home in Santander.

Mexico City, May 27.—To sail at once for Europe, General Porfirio Diaz, who resigned the presidency of Mexico Thursday, left for Vera Cruz yesterday. The ex-president's party included his wife and children, a number of men prominent in the fallen administration, and officials of the National railway of Mexico.

The railway company provided a special train for the general and his party. Today General Diaz, his wife and family and probably some of the retiring officials who accompanied him, will board the steamship Ypiranga and sail immediately for Havana. At Havana the party will take passage and sail for Santander, Spain, where it is said that General Diaz will spend the rest of his days.

Mexico's New President.

Provisional President De La Barra now occupies the chair which for the last thirty years has been virtually the throne of General Diaz. Senor De La Barra was sworn into office at noon yesterday, and he will serve as ruler of the republic until the revolutionists can get their administration into working order and hold a general election. This will be the first election in which the voters will have a chance to express genuinely their preference as to who shall govern them.

SOCIALIST RULE

Lower California to Be So Dominated if Plans Work Out.

San Diego, Cal., May 27.—That General Rhys Pryce and the men of his command, acting under instructions of the revolutionary junta at Los Angeles, will undertake the establishment of an independent government in Lower California, to be dominated by Socialists, is evident now. When General Pryce and his force captured Tia Juana he had less than 200 men. Now he has 1,000, probably three-fourths Americans, and a large number of them beardless youths bent on adventure.

So confident is General Pryce since he has gained 800 recruits that one of the biggest battles since the revolution started will follow the arrival of Governor Viljoen's force sent to Lower California to retake Tia Juana.

Pryce and his men believe that because of chaotic internal conditions in Mexico, that the government will not be able to war with them for Lower California. They believe a decisive defeat of the force sent against them will leave them in undisputed possession.

THE MODEST MADERO

Says He Cannot Personally Announce Candidacy For High Office.

El Paso, May 27.—Francisco I. Madero has issued a manifesto renouncing the title of president of the provisional government. He expresses the utmost confidence in the good faith of Francisco De La Barra while he holds the office of temporary president of Mexico, and says the insurrecto troops are at the disposal of De La Barra in restoring peace in Mexico. Madero was asked if he would announce his candidacy for the presidency of Mexico, and he said he would not, that such a thing was not considered proper in his country, but his friends would advance his name at the proper time.

The legislature of Chihuahua has been summoned by Miguel Ahumada, governor, who will resign and present the name of Abram Gonzales, provisional governor for the position. No trouble has been reported regarding installing insurrecto governors in any state other than Coahuila. There Madero ordered his soldiers to take the capital.

RESIGNATION RUMOR PURSUING LORIMER

Generally Believed Blonde Boss Will Give Up.

Washington, May 27.—Among senators there is a widespread belief that Senator William Lorimer will try to forestall a second investigation of the charges of corruption in connection with his election by resigning. Mr. Lorimer is in Chicago. No one in authority to speak for him appeared to say what he will do. But there is a pretty well settled conviction in the senate that if the senator from Illinois submits his title to his seat in the senate to the second test of an investigation, he will forfeit the title.

The sentiment in favor of a reopening of the Lorimer case is now practically unanimous. It is predicted that there will not be a single vote in opposition to ordering a second investigation. A report from the second investigation will not be made to the senate, in all probability, until it meets in December. Senator Lorimer's chances of retaining his seat are jeopardized not only by the new evidence that has turned up, but by the fact that the senate personnel has materially changed since the former vote vindicating him was taken. Today, upon the record of the Lorimer case as submitted after the first investigation, the senator would be ousted. But the second investigation is certain to make some of Mr. Lorimer's close friends and political managers uncomfortable.

General Bertheaux's Funeral.

Paris, May 27.—With imposing public ceremonies such as France has not seen since the funeral of Victor Hugo, Minister of War Henri Maurice Bertheaux was buried Friday. Everywhere were signs of mourning. General Francois Goiran has accepted the post of minister of war, made vacant by Bertheaux's death.

FEW SUGGESTIONS FOR THE MOTORIST

To secure the best possible service from his tires, the motorist must care for them properly and nothing is of greater importance than prompt repairing of small cuts in the treads.

It is impossible to avoid these cuts as small stones and other sharp objects are bound to come in contact with the tread. Sometimes these cuts are small and seem insignificant but damage results from neglecting them. In fact, unless repaired promptly they will eventually bring about the complete destruction of the envelope. Stones, dust and dirt work in the under the tread, raising blisters and separating the rubber from the canvas. Moisture also gets in and quickly rots the fabric and disintegration follows.

Immediately on discovery of cuts, the edges and interior should be thoroughly cleaned with gasoline, separating the edges with a match or small stick to expose the inside. All foreign matter must be removed and when the cut is perfectly clean, the interior and edges should be coated with cement. After allowing the first coat to dry, apply another and while still "tacky" knead with the fingers sufficient mastic and force it into cuts, pressing it firmly into every crevice. When the cut is properly filled, hold the edges together firmly for a few moments until the mastic sets. The repair should then be allowed to stand six hours or more if possible, allowing the mastic to harden properly. Mastic is a plastic cement sold at nearly all garages. It is very useful and a small can for the tool box is a good investment.

Buying Up-to-Date Goods

No woman likes to feel that she is buying old, shopworn, out-of-date goods.

She wants goods which are new and fresh, especially in articles of wear and ornamentation.

The store in which you trade largely determines what kind of goods you are buying.

If you trade in stores which do a small amount of business, you may rest assured that your merchant is always carrying goods which are two or three seasons out-of-date.

Such a merchant depends upon people coming to his store and searching through the stock to find out what they want.

The bright advertising merchant goes at it in another way.

He doesn't wait for people to dig through the stock to find his goods, but he uses space in the newspapers to tell all the people about his goods.

Advertising makes it easy for them to know about his wares, brings him immediate buyers and he sells his stock over and over again.

It doesn't get a chance to get stale—out-of-date.

Therefore, if you want to feel that the goods you are buying are right in style, quality and price, you should patronize the merchants who advertise.

The Connorsville News noticed that some of the Sixth district Democratic papers are publishing Congressman Gray's pension bill in full, and say that "it is a compliment to Mr. Gray for them to do this, but since the committee on pensions in the House ignored this bill and cast what votes they had for other bills, it is hard to understand what purpose its publication serves as a sort of mild mannered campaign document."

The legislature of Illinois has adopted a resolution favoring the construction of a "good road" to be called "the Lincoln Way," from the Kentucky birthplace of Abraham Lincoln to Springfield. If the project is carried out by State aid, it will require the co-operation of Indiana and Kentucky. The Hoosier State will, no doubt, be ready to do its part in anything to honor the great man who passed part of his youth within her limits.

The aged president of the Mexican Republic quietly left his country to make his home in Spain. He had the good fortune after all to go out of office with his person and property intact—something unusual in Latin American republics. What is in store for the victorious Madero only the future history will tell. Madero faces a situation not at all reassuring. Mexico has by no means reached the end of her troubles. Diaz has managed to maintain the only government with any degree of permanency south of the Gulf of Mexico. The history that has been made in a dozen other republics may begin to repeat itself in Mexico.

The purchase of goods requires not merely personal attention from the purchaser, which is never secured on a hurried shopping tour or from a mail order house, but it needs careful discussion with some intelligent salesman, who feels keenly interested to serve you.

How much helpful attention do you get from some fluffy haired store clerk in a distant city, whose only motive in talking with you is to avoid the wrath of the floor walker?

In the home city, there grows up more or less personal relationship between the salespeople and customers. They feel enough interested in them, too, to tell the truth about goods, realizing that a sale made on false statements kills future business. It is therefore possible in dealing at home to find out from the proprietor or his clerks what you really are buying. That information is worth a heavy percentage on the cost of your purchase.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

The Civil war was fought fifty years ago, but the events of that time still linger vividly with those who participated in that strife. Another generation has grown up since, and besides in these days of industrial growth and material prosperity, the average citizen doesn't give much time to the thought that the favorable conditions under which he lives and prosecutes his business are a heritage transmitted to him by the life-long efforts of public spirited men from the very beginning of history.

It is right and fitting that we properly appreciate that we are the heirs of all the ages, but it is particularly appropriate that we set aside one day in the year when we shall do honor to those, both living and dead, who have offered their lives to the country and through whose sacrifice we are today a united nation. Every year the number of those who have gone before is greater; they should never be forgotten. But to those who are still here with us we should do the honor that their service merits. Flowers for the dead represent a very beautiful idea, but respect and gratitude to the living are vastly better. The flowers, however fragrant, will soon wither, but the kind words of appreciation and "the little unremembered acts of kindness and love" can never die even after the recipient has passed to his reward.

We have perhaps underestimated the services of our old soldiers because we have grown accustomed to having them among us. We have seen them daily going about their duties the same as other men and we have allowed ourselves to forget that they offered themselves as freely on the altar of freedom as did the three hundred Immortals at the Pass of Thermopylae. What is remote both in time and in location usually appeals to us as more heroic. We read with thrills of the charge of the English at Balaklava, of the unflinching heroism of Nelson at Trafalgar, of the heroic persistence of Washington in his winter camp at Valley Forge; but it is likely that we overlook the heroism displayed at Shiloh, Gettysburg and the battle of the Wilderness and the horrors of Southern prison life. There is very little that we can do to show our appreciation, but that little should be done gladly.

Let us turn out in force to do honor to these "Boys in Blue" and make them feel that the present generation is deeply grateful for the service which has made possible, at so great a cost, the national solidarity that we now enjoy.

sidered a champion of national principles rather than of the people in whose cause he actually was laboring.

"Daniel Webster was like many modern statesmen. He failed of reward because unable to express appreciation for the people, if he felt it as I believe Webster did. Webster seemed cloaked in austerity, but the few persons who knew him intimately said that this was a mask unconsciously worn, and that the real Webster was warm hearted and possessed a desire to respect friends and enemies alike and to be respected by them."

As indicative of Clay's Democracy, Mr. Cowing recalls having seen the statesman shopping and once observing him returning from market with a number of cantaloupes tucked under his coat and poorly concealed.

"It was for these simply, homely acts that the people loved him," Mr. Cowing said.

Mr. Cowing regards Andrew Jackson as the greatest President of his period, and deprecates the fact that Clay was never elected President.

"Everybody admired Jackson and Clay," said he, "Jackson, by his rough-and-ready ways and the simplicity of his life, endeared himself to the people of his time to a greater extent, perhaps, than any other President."

John C. Calhoun, according to Mr. Cowing, was never popular. He had the reputation of being "crabbed" and somewhat surly, making many enemies, but not being without loyal friends Mr. Cowing's recollections of Whittier are vivid. Whittier, he says, was a lovable character, and although gentle in his ways and careful of the rights of others, was firm of purpose when he took a stand, as he did in the matter of slavery.

Mr. Cowing describes General Sam Houston as "a big, majestic man, with a towering figure." He insists that people now pronounce General Houston's name wrongly, and that in the warrior's lifetime the first syllable of "Houston" was pronounced as though it were "house," instead of "hews" as now.

Among the other notable statesmen with whom Mr. Cowing came in contact or whom he saw were Seward, Chase, Hale and Giddings.

Mr. Cowing, although then but sixteen years old, did what he could to elect General William Henry Harrison President in 1840. He purchased the Rushville, (Ind.) Whig, which publication he ran for a while, and then went to Washington where he held both editorial and mechanical positions on publications. He traveled from Rushville to Washington largely by stage coach, and saw a railroad train for the first time in Cumberland, Md. For many years he was connected with the United States treasury department in Washington, and by reason of this had many more opportunities to come in contact with distinguished men of the time. He saw Lincoln several years before he became President, and voted for him for the latter office. He has voted for every candidate for the presidency since Lincoln.

Mr. Cowing returned to Indiana in 1857, and has lived most of the time near Muncie, managing a large fruit farm. He is a recognized authority on fruits that grow in the climate and on methods of preserving trees.

MARVELS AT GROWTH IN RESIDENCE DISTRICT

What do they call you?" "Oh, my name. That's a very im-material matter. They call me Look-at-it Favorably and I generally answer by that name. I have been following that business these many years and I have always found it very profitable. By reason of my name, many of my friends have seen fit to dub me an optometrist. Perhaps they are right, but it would be rather egotistical for me to admit that I am an optometrist."

Now that everyone here knows you, how about that jaunt about the city which you took on your first visit here last week?"

"That was great. I was startled, if that's a fair word for it. That expresses it better than surprised, which is too mild. Of course, when I used to live here and found that looking at it favorably was not a very profitable business, I always knew that Rushville was noted for its beautiful residences. But it was never like this in the olden days."

"What do you consider the prettiest part of the city?"

"I couldn't think of answering that question for it would make some people who are proud of their homes, so jealous and perhaps, angry at me. In that case they might go over to my opponent, the pessimist. I was especially attracted, however, by the wonderful changes that have been made in the outer edges along the corporation lines. In North Main street, for instance, there is a wonderfully beautiful set of homes. There are few cities of this size—and I have been traveling a good bit in the last five years—that can brag of such a district as that. Of course in every city, there are a few homes that, by their elegance and splendor, overshadow and outshine every other home in the city. Not so here. There are no wonderfully fine homes, but there are so many of the kind that appeal to me."

"What do you think of what they formally called the factory district?"

"I was even more surprised at that. I see that one family has the home plate out there right where we used to have third base on the old 'commons,' where I have won many a game by looking at it favorably. There will be no more ball games like those out there for the boys had to give away to business industry and growth. I can not express the feeling I had when I noted the new homes that had been built out there in the last five years. It's remarkable. It's remarkable."

"What would it cost for us to keep you here all the time?"

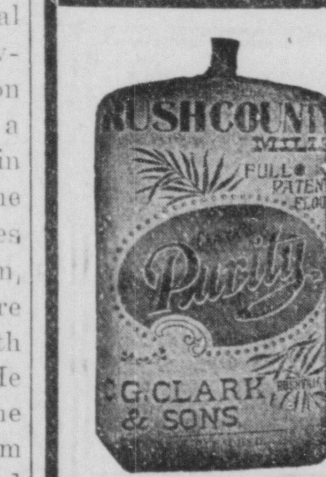

"Oh, I don't know. I might come and live without any great inducements. I'll think it over and let you know next week. In the meantime I must visit some of my other friends in other cities."

CAMPAIGN IS CLOSED TODAY

As the Week Ends the Fund Stands at $24,010, an Increase of $973.

HAS CONTINUED TWELVE DAYS

Some Work is Yet to be Done in the First Ten Counties in the District.

Today is the last day of the campaign in the first ten districts of the territory being canvassed in behalf of Earlham College. As the week closes the Earlham fund stands at $24,010, which is $973 greater than yesterday when it reached $23,037.

For the last ten or twelve days the field workers for Earlham have been actively engaged in canvassing Marion, Howard, Tipton, Clinton, Hamilton, Jay, Randolph, Delaware, Blackford, Wayne, Henry, Hancock, Rush, Grant, Parke, Vigo, Clay, Hendricks and Morgan counties, these constituting districts 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 15, 18. Beginning Monday the campaign will be centered in Miami, Wabash, Bartholomew, Jennings, Orange, Washington, Vermillion, Montgomery, Boone and Tippecanoe counties, Ind; Van Wert, Paulding, Mercer, Preble, Butler and Hamilton counties, Ohio; Vermillion and Iroquois counties, Ill., and the city of Richmond, which constitute districts 4, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 19 and 20.

There remains, however, some work to be done in the first ten districts, and this will be carried on at the same time the canvass is extended to the final ten districts. It will be a week or more before complete reports are received from the first ten districts. It is known that the campaign has been very satisfactory in this territory, but it will be impossible to get all of the pledge cards in and filed for several days.

The towns represented in today's contributions of $973 are: Carthage, Greenfield, Rushville, Fairmount, Sheridan, Westfield, Carmel, Indianapolis, Marion, Summitville. There were 40 pledges ranging from $1 to $250.

The Palace will present the usual two reels of pictures for tonight's performance. "The Cowboy and the Shrew" is a Selig film with a touch of romance and comedy which makes the picture complete. The scenes are laid in the West and the hero is a bow puncher who furnishes most of the comedy. An illustrated song will be sung.

At the Vaudet tonight the first picture will be a Thanhouser comedy "Caley's Comet." The picture is a great burlesque on Halley's comet and is said to be very funny. "His Best Friends," a Solax film is said to be a fine drama. The last picture is a Thanhouser drama "Robert Emmet." Leon Maxey will sing the illustrated song.

The Star Grand Airdome will present two fine pictures tonight. The first is a Yankee entitled "The Senorita's Sacrifice." It is a Spanish drama. The second picture is an Imp entitled "At the Duke's Command." It is a drama acted by the Imp all-star stock company, superbly staged and finely costumed. Earl Robertson will sing the illustrated song.

It is estimated that in June there will be 75,000 American women in London for the coronation ceremonies, and judging from the sailing lists, it is evident that practically all the members of New York's fashionable set will be there.

The useful potato, although introduced into England by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1584, was for many years little cultivated or appreciated. In James I's time it sold for 2 shillings a pound, and it did not come into general use in many parts of the country until the end of the eighteenth century.

CHAPTER X.

Mr. Hawley Reveals Himself.

A fragment of candle, stuck tightly into the neck of an empty bottle, appeared on a low shelf, and Keith lighted it, the girl returning the lamp to its former position on the front room table. Investigation revealed a dozen cartridges fitting the revolver, but no ammunition was discovered adapted to the sawed-off gun, which Neb had already appropriated, and was dragging about with him, peering into each black corner in anxious search. The two were still busily employed at this, when to their ears, through the stillness of the night, there came the unexpected noise of splashing in the water without, and then the sound of a horse stumbling as he struck the bank. Quick as a flash Keith closed the intervening door, extinguished the dim flame of the candle, and grasping the startled negro's arm, hushed him into silence.

Crouching close behind the door, through a crack of which the light streamed, yielding slight view of the interior, the plainsman anxiously awaited developments. These arrivals must certainly be some of those connected with the house; there could be little doubt as to that. Nevertheless, they might prove the posse following them, who had changed to stumble accidentally on their retreat. In either case they could merely wait, and learn. Some one swore without, and was sharply rebuked by another voice, which added an order gruffly. Then the outer latch clicked, and a single man stepped within, immediately closing the door. Keith could not see the girl through the small aperture, but he heard her quick exclamation, startled, yet full of relief.

"Oh, is it you? I am so glad!" The man laughed lightly.

"It is nice to be welcomed, although, perhaps, after your time of loneliness any arrival would prove a relief. Did you think I was never coming, Christie?"

"I could not understand," she replied, evidently with much less enthusiasm, and to Keith's thinking, a shade resentful of the familiarity, "but naturally supposed you must be unexpectedly delayed."

"Well, I was," and he apparently hung both coat and hat on a bench, with the intention of remaining. "The marshal arrested a fellow for a murder committed out on the Santa Fe Trail, and required me as a witness. But the man got away before we had any chance to try him, and I have been on his trail ever since."

"A murder! Did you imagine he came this way?"

"Not very likely; fact of it is, the sand storm yesterday destroyed all traces, and, as a result, we've lost him. So I headed a few of the boys over in this direction, as I wanted to relieve you of anxiety."

She was silent an instant, and the man crossed to the fireplace, where Keith could gain a glimpse of him. Already suspicious from the familiar sound of his voice, he was not surprised to recognize "Black Bart." The plainsman's fingers gripped the negro's arm, his eyes burning. So this gambler and blackleg was the gentlemanly Mr. Hawley, was he; well, what could be his little game? Why had he inveigled the girl into this lonely spot? And what did he now propose doing with her? As he crouched there, peering through that convenient crack in the door, Keith completely forgot his own

'Cascarets' End All the Miserable Days

A Ten Cent Box Insures You Against a Sick Headache, Biliousness,
Constipation of a Bad Stomach
For a Long Time.

Primitive men did not need Cascarets. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We exercise too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine, too rich.

We can't have the bowels clogged up and keep well. It means that the food retained there decays. The decay creates poisons. And those poisons are sucked into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. So we must make our choice. We must live, to an extent, like the primitive man else we must eat Cascarets.

Cascarets do what the right food would do, what plenty of exercise does. The effect is as natural from one as the other. The question is one of convenience. If you choose Cascarets, take them as you take food, not in large doses rarely, but a tablet at a time. That is the way to keep well. Get a ten cent box now.

peril, intent upon this new discovery. She came slowly around the end of the table, and stood leaning against it, her face clearly revealed in the light of the lamp. For the first time Keith really perceived its beauty, its fresh charm. Could such as she be singer and dancer in a frontier concert hall? And if so, what strange conditions ever drove her into that sort of life?

"Is—Is Fred with you?" she questioned, doubtfully.

"No; he's with another party riding farther west," the man's eyes surveying her with manifest approval. "You are certainly looking fine to-night, my girl. It's difficult to understand how I ever managed to keep away from you so long."

She flushed to the hair, her lips trembling at the open boldness of his tone.

"I—I prefer you not to speak like that," she protested.

"And why not?" with a light laugh. "Come, Christie, such fine airs are a trifle out of place. If I didn't know you were a concert hall artist, I might be more deeply impressed. As it is, I reckon you've heard love words before now."

"Mr. Hawley, I have trusted you as a gentleman. I never came here except on your promise to bring me to my brother," and she stood erect before him. "You have no right to even assume that I am Christie MacLaure."

"Sure not; I don't assume. I have seen that lady too often to be mistaken. Don't try on that sort of thing with me—I don't take to it kindly. Perhaps a kiss might put you in better humor."

He took a step forward, as though proposing to carry out his threat, but the girl stopped him, her eyes burning with indignation.

"How dare you!" she exclaimed passionately, all fear leaving her in sudden resentment. "You think me alone here and helpless; that you can insult me at your pleasure. Don't go too far, Mr. Hawley. I know what you are now, and it makes no difference what you may think of me, or call me; you'll find me perfectly able to defend myself."

"Oh, indeed!" sneeringly, "you are melodramatic; you should have been an actress instead of a singer. But you waste your talent out here on me. Do you imagine I fear either you, or your precious brother? Why, I could have him hung to-morrow."

She was staring at him with wide open eyes, her face white.

"What—what do you mean? What has Fred done?"

He was cold and sarcastic.

"That makes no difference; it is what I could induce men to swear he had done. It's easy enough to convict in this country, if you only know how. I simply tell you this, so you won't press me too hard. Puritanism is out of place west of the Missouri, especially among ladies of your profession. Oh, come, now, Christie, don't try to put such airs on with me. I know who you are, all right, and can guess why you are hunting after Fred Willoughby. I pumped the boy, and got most of the truth out of him."

"You—you have seen him, then, since you left me," she faltered, bewildered, "and didn't bring him here with you?"

"Why should I?" and the man stepped forward, his eyes on her, his hands twitching with a desire to clasp her to him, yet restrained by some undefinable power. "While I believed your brother story, I could have played the good Samaritan most beautifully, but after I talked with Willoughby I prefer him at a distance."

"My brother story! Do you mean to insinuate you doubt his being my brother? He told you that?"

"He gave up the whole trick. You can't trust a kid like that, Christie. A couple of drinks will loosen his tongue, and put you in wrong. Come, now, I know it all; be reasonable."

Apparently the girl had lost her power of speech, staring blindly at the face of the man before her, as a bird meets the slow approach of a snake. Keith could see her lips move, but making no sound. Hawley evidently interpreted her silence as hesitation, doubt as to his real meaning.

"You see where you are at now, Christie," he went on swiftly. "But you don't need to be afraid. I'm going to be a friend to you, and you can be mighty glad you got rid of Willoughby so easily. Why, I can buy you diamonds where he couldn't give you a calico dress. Come on, let's stop this foolishness. I took a liking to you back there in the stage, and the more I've thought about you since the crazier I've got. When I succeeded in pumping Willoughby dry, and discovered you wasn't his sister at all, why that settled the matter. I came down here after you. I love you, do you understand that? And, what's more, I intend to have you!"

He reached out, and actually grasped her, but, in some manner, she tore loose, and sprang back around the end of the table, her cheeks flushed, her eyes burning.

"Don't touch me! don't dare touch me!" she panted. "You lie; Fred Willoughby never told you that. If you come one step nearer, I'll scream; I'll call your men here; I'll tell them the kind of a cur you are."

He laughed, leaning over toward her, yet hesitating, his eyes full of admiration. Her very fierceness appealed to him, urged him on.

"Oh, I wouldn't! In the first place they probably wouldn't hear, for they are camped down in the corral. I suspected you might be something of a tigress, and preferred to fight it out with you alone. Then, even if they did hear, there would be no interference—I've got those fellows trained too well for that. Come on, Christie; you're helpless here."

"Am I?"

"Yes, you are."

He took a step toward her, his hands fung out. With one quick movement she sprang aside and extinguished the lamp, plunging the room into instant darkness. A few red coals glowed dully in the fireplace, but all else was dense blackness. Keith heard the movements of Hawley, as he felt his way uncertainly along the table, swearing as he failed to find the girl. Then, like a shadow, he glided through the partly open door into the room.

CHILDREN'S HAIR

Keep it Free From Dandruff and it
Will Grow Lovely.

Being the best hair dressing for men and women. Parisian Sage is also best for children. Try it once and see how clean and healthy it keeps the scalp.

"My daughter used Parisian Sage on her children's hair and it is as good as you recommended it to be."

—Hannah Anderson, 1021 Divine St., Columbia, S. C.

Here is what a North Dakota woman says:

"Parisian Sage certainly has done my hair a lot of good, and will highly recommend it as a very good tonic for the hair. Have used various kinds of tonics and have found Parisian Sage the best. I have my head free from dandruff now, and it has a healthy luster and has an even color. It used to be streaky. Many of my friends are using it and they speak highly of it."—Mrs. Anna Rooney, 101 Second street, N. Fargo, N. D.

Always bear in mind that there is nothing for the hair that can compare with Parisian Sage. There are many imitations but none of them are guaranteed to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN THE HAIR

Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair, with wonderfully beneficial effect.

Nowadays we don't have to resort to old-time, tiresome methods of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Rehearsals are in full swing for the first week of the summer season of stock at the Shubert Murat Theater which opens next Monday night with Clyde Fitch's great American drama "Barbara Frietche." The company engaged gives promise of being one of the very best companies ever assembled for stock, the roster showing a list of names that would be an impossible, to secure during the regular season owing to the high salaries that these players could command at that time for their services.

In selecting productions for the stock season no expense is to be spared to present plays that have been produced in Indianapolis at popular prices, only high class royalty plays being selected, these productions will be presented with the full equipment of special scenery, costuming and stage effects that marked their original presentation at two dollar prices. Another feature that means much to the patrons of the summer shows will be perfect comfort in hot weather brought about by the splendid cooling system installed in the Murat Theater which is said to be the finest ever placed in a building of this kind, making it possible to keep the temperature as low as sixty-five degrees during the hottest of the summer months.

In presenting "Barbara Frietche," the initial play that will open the season, theater goers will have an excellent opportunity of judging the calibre of the plays and players, for the cast of characters demands the full strength of the acting company, as well as the superlative skill of the scenic artists, mechanics and stage director. Being written for Julia Marlow by Mr. Fitch who staged the play with utter disregard for expense the author has furnished a drama that for elaborateness in production has scarcely been equalled in the past decade, and when the curtain goes up on the first act of next Monday night, the auditor will witness the same magnificent display of scenic effects and costuming that marked the first presentation with the stamp of success. In addition to the full acting company taking part one hundred extra people has been engaged to properly depict the realistic scenes of this thrilling military drama of the civil war, created from the famous poem of John Greenleaf Whittier.

Seats for all performances are now on sale at the Murat Theater box office, night prices, 25-35-50 cents. Matinees Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, with a special holiday matinee Tuesday, May 30. Matinee prices 25 cents all parts of the theater, all seats reserved.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS

Declines to Conduct Investigation of Postoffice Department.

Washington, May 27.—Louis D. Brandeis, the Boston lawyer, invited to conduct the inquiry by a house committee into the affairs of the postoffice department, has declined to serve. Mr. Brandeis declared that an investigation, such as is proposed, would be of no avail. It should be undertaken, he said, by a joint committee appointed by both houses of congress, endowed with authority to recommend changes in the laws and methods of the postal service.

DEPOSED MINISTER IS HEART BROKEN

Dr. Grant Takes Heresy Finding to Heart.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 27.—By careful missionary work among the 900 commissioners, leaders of the Presbyterian general assembly kept down a demonstration of any kind when the judicial commission made official announcement of finding Dr. William D. Grant of the Northumberland (Pa.) presbytery guilty of heresy. Instead of the expected strife for days, as feared by the men at the head of affairs, prayerful silence ensued with the adoption of the court's decision, which carried with it recommendation of lenity and suspension from the exercise of his office of the ministry if he makes "renunciation of his errors and satisfies his own presbytery that he will no longer propagate such teachings."

Dr. Grant was heartbroken over the unexpected decision, which reverses that given by the Northumberland presbytery some time ago. He said: "I shall clearly state my views to my own presbytery when the proper time comes. I am just beginning to realize the terrible truth of the commission's verdict. There is no enmity in my heart for them. They did their duty as they saw it, the same as I have always tried to do in ministering to my charge. My regret for the painful affair is entirely sincere. God and my friends are with me in their sympathy."

FINED THE MONON

Railroad Was Guilty of Violating the Hours of Employment Law.

Indianapolis, May 27.—Judgments totalling $1,350 have been rendered against the Monon railroad by Judge Anderson in federal court on complaint of District Attorney Miller that the company in November and December, 1909, and June, 1910, had violated the federal law against keeping telegraph operators on duty for more than nine hours consecutively. The two complaints charged forty violations of the law at Monon, Delphi, Rensselaer and South Hammond. A penalty of $200 on the first paragraph of each action was imposed and a penalty of $25 on each of the other offenses charged.

The Monon in its answer admitted that the charges were true.

GOT IT DOWN TO LOWEST FIGURE

New Subsistence Record At Indiana Reformatory.

COST OF FEEDING CONVICTS

Major Peyton, Superintendent, Comments on Figures Heretofore Published, Showing That Cost of Feeding Inmates of Reformatory Is Practically the Lowest of Any Institution of Its Kind.

Jeffersonville, Ind., May 27.—According to a statement made by Major David C. Peyton, general superintendent, the cost of feeding the inmates of the Indiana reformatory is even lower than the figures heretofore published, being practically the lowest of any institution of the kind.

The figures, 11.64 cents per diem, per capita, which appear in the annual report for the last fiscal year, included the cost of the officers' kitchen and dining room, the home of the general superintendent and the board's dining room. The per capita cost for the inmates' kitchen and dining room alone is 10.64 cents, which is 4-100ths of a cent a day cheaper than the figures for the state prison at Michigan City.

Last month's subsistence bill was less than this figure, with a per capita per diem of 9.81 cents in the inmates' kitchen and dining room.

FIXING NEW PROGRAM

Original Plans For Terre Haute's Centennial Fell Through.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 27.—Plans for the celebration of the centennial of the founding of Fort Harrison have been abandoned by the local committee on arrangements, and if President Taft stops in Terre Haute, new arrangements for entertaining him will have to be made.

The Sons of the Revolution announced their intention of celebrating the centennial of the founding of the fort last year, and other organizations expressed a desire to join in the movement. The Commercial club invited President Taft to attend, but plans for the joint celebration have failed. Some kind of a program will be arranged if President Taft accepts the invitation.

Milsap, Anderson; esquire, David Carlton, Elwood; inside guard, Charles G. Foresman, Muncie; trustee, Robert A. Scott, Linton.

He Wants to Fight.

Shelbyville, Ind., May 27.—D. C. A. Rivers, a shoe and harness mender at St. Paul, has received an anonymous letter through the United States mail. It was composed principally of slurs and signed "Half Breed." Mr. Rivers has posted in one of the windows of his place of business a letter in reply, challenging the anonymous letter writer to meet him at any time and any place for a fight.

John von Froelich, pastor of St. Stephen's Catholic church here, has been exonerated of charges of a revolting nature made against him by members of the parish.

Confessed Indiana Robbery.

Lafayette, Ind., May 27.—Word has been received from Monticello, Ill., that four burglars, who were captured there after robbing a store, had confessed that they robbed the Colburn postoffice, near this city, a few weeks ago.

Shotgun Clutched in Arms.

Clinton, Ind., May 27.—The body of Benjamin Cherry, forty years old, was found in the yard of the home where he boarded. A shotgun was clutched in his arms and the shot had entered his brain. Cherry was in ill health.

DAVID C. PEYTON

Superintendent of the Indiana
Reformatory at Jeffersonville.

BAD FEELING OVER AN OLD LOVE AFFAIR

Leads to a Double Tragedy
In Hendricks County.

Clayton, Ind., May 27.—Oliver Wilhoit, a constable from Danville, was shot and killed by Harvey Moon, who then went across fields a quarter of a mile away to the home of George Buldock and shot Mrs. Buldock, who was standing in the kitchen with her little five-year-old daughter. The bullet passed through the heart, killing her instantly. Mrs. Buldock was Moon's cousin. Wilhoit had a writ of ejectment for Moon and was at the latter's home removing the furniture when he attacked the constable. Moon obtained possession of Wilhoit's revolver during the scuffle and turned it on its owner, firing three shots. All took effect.

The motive for the crimes seems to have been bad feeling aroused by a love affair of several years' standing. Moon was in love with Mrs. Buldock's sister, and his attentions were opposed by Mrs. Buldock.

Moon was unmarried and lived in a little two-room house alone. He was arrested an hour after the shooting. No resistance was offered and he was taken to Danville and placed in jail. The only witness of the shooting of Mrs. Buldock was her little daughter, and she went about half a mile across a field and reported to her father that "Mamma had been shot by Uncle Harvey."

Moon has been a "terror" to the neighborhood, and especially to relatives, and he had threatened a number of times to "get them."

THE GOVERNOR'S PROGRAM

Busy Week Outlined For Indiana's
Chief Executive.

Indianapolis, May 27.—Governor Marshall will spend virtually all next week away from his office. Thursday he will be at Michigan City, where he will deliver a commencement address before the high school. Friday he will attend the annual meeting of the Indiana Democratic editors at Laporte, where he will make an address.

NEXT MEETING AT RISING SUN

Local Bankers Return From Session at Connersville Praising Hosts as Great Entertainers.

COURSE LUNCHEON IS FEATURE

Ernest Thomas Creates a Good Impression With Address on the Topic, "Trust Companies."

The second annual meeting of the bankers of the Sixth Indiana Group at Connersville yesterday, which was attended by a large number of representative bankers from this city, was much better attended than the first meeting held at Greensburg last year, so Rushville bankers report. All of the bankers were enthusiastic about the organization and many more profitable and enjoyable sessions are predicted.

At the business sessions late yesterday afternoon, Lucian Harris of Rising Sun was named chairman of the organization, which corresponds to president. The next annual meeting will be held in the chairman's home city. R. W. Hicks of Cambridge City was chosen as secretary. No local bankers were elected to office. Ralph Payne of the Peoples National Bank has been a member of the nomination committee for the last year. Frederick I. Barrows of Connersville was elected representative to the State Association meeting which will be held next fall.

Local bankers are high in their praise for the entertainment which they received at the hands of the Connersville bankers. One hundred visitors were present and were all treated to an automobile ride about the city at the close of the morning session. After that they were taken to the third floor of the Auditorium opera house, where a three-course luncheon was served.

All of the decorations, the menu card and the food smacked of money. The menu was printed on bogus hundred dollar bills. In the center of the large room a great dollar mark stood, made of flowers, and the cream was stamped into the shape of an overgrown golden eagle. The luncheon was most excellent, and served by a very capable set of waiters, and two o'clock had come before it was over. Then after the further comfort of good cigars, the gathering returned to the Auditorium where the afternoon session was begun.

E. B. Thomas of the Peoples Loan & Trust Company was among the speakers, which included the best bankers of the fifteen counties that comprise the group. He spoke on "Trust Companies" and his address according to Rushville bankers, was highly spoken of. Dan S. Perry chairman of the State Association, spoke, as did Hugh T. Miller of Columbus, former lieutenant governor.
